Alba (Scotland): Past and present

An Gart Mòr

Scotland's new authorities and the investigation area

State of Gàidhlig in 1891:

Most of the enumerated Gàidhlig speakers were born in the wider Gaidhealtachd and only a handful of locally born residents spoke the language. The great majority of speakers of course were members of the older generation although a few children were found which spoke still the traditional language.

Gàidhlig as a normal means of communication had retreated from An Gart Mòr (Gartmore) and the surrounding land some decades earlier.

Area description:

The rural district described is the old ecclesiastic parish of An Gart Mòr (Gartmore) on both sides of the boundary between the counties of Peairt (Perth) and Sruighlea (Stirling). The village of An Gart Mòr was the natural centre of this diverse district on the verge of the Highlands.

At the time of the census construction was ongoing for the Keltie Water Works in 1891. Therefore a large workforce and their engineers were present at census night.

Background of Gàidhlig (Scottish Gaelic) Local Profiles:

The 1891 census was the first such enumeration exercise with an unequivocal language question. After more than 100 years the original census forms are publicly available for detailed analysis. During research concerned with the “Gàidhlig (Scottish Gaelic) Local Studies” a vast number of such local statistics have been gathered about the Gàidhlig speaking population of Scotland in that year. As many of these results could not be included in the reports these concise fact-sheets are a welcome way to publish some of the “local gems”. Place of birth and Gàidhlig speaking:

Only a handful of locally born residents spoke the language. Almost all entries came from people with a birthplace in the wider Gaidhealtachd.

Notes:

¹ Born either in Port of Menteith (Perthshire), Drymen (Stirlingshire) or in the parishes of Buchanan, Killearn, Gargunnoch, Kippen (all Stirlingshire) or Callander and Aberfoyle (both Perthshire).

² Born in other parishes of Scotland with more than 50 % Gàidhlig speakers in the 1891 census.

Speakers according to place of birth (1) nearby¹ (2) in remaining Gaidhealtachd ², or (3) elsewhere

Remarks:

1. In original census report terms the district had a population of 815 persons of all ages. 77 enumerated inhabitants spoke “Gaelic and English”. This led to an “official” share of Gàidhlig speakers of 9.4 %. This figure was a slight under-estimate of 1.4 % of the figures of the usually resident population.
2. At the time of the census there were intensive engineering operations ongoing for the construction of tunnels and pipes for the Keltie Water Works, In this context it has to be mentioned that 267 people on the census sheets lived only temporarily in the area. Among them 22 Gàidhlig speakers were recorded – mostly workers from elsewhere in the Highlands. These census returns, however, were not taken into account in these statistics because only the usually resident population was of interest.
