Alba (Scotland): Past and present

State of Gàidhlig in 1891:

More than 20 % of the usually resident population in this area still spoke Gàidhlig. This comparatively low percentage hides the significant strength of the language in individual communities like Iomair nan Gall (Gaulrigg) and Innis Ruairidh (Inchrory) where over 70 % of inhabitants spoke the traditional tongue.

The language community as a whole, however, was relatively old aged with no children below the age of 15 found to speak Gàidhlig. It can be assumed that the language generally ceased to be used in the raising of children in the area around 1860.

Area description:

The district described lies north and east of the small village of Tom an t-Sabhail (Tomintoul) in the mountainous part of the county of Banbh (Banff). The communities included very small and scattered dwellings in Gleann Conghlais (Glen Conglass), the narrow glen leading to the mountain pass of An Leac (Lecht) and of course remote Gleann Athfhinn (Glen Avon) itself. People were occupied mainly with some farming and a few services for the local lairds including game keeping.

Background of Gàidhlig (Scottish Gaelic) Local Profiles:

The 1891 census was the first such enumeration exercise with an unequivocal language question. After more than 100 years the original census forms are publicly available for detailed analysis. During research concerned with the "Gàidhlig (Scottish Gaelic) Local Studies" a vast number of such local statistics have been gathered about the Gàidhlig speaking population of Scotland in that year. As many of these results could not be included in the reports these concise fact-sheets are a welcome way to publish some of the "local gems". Place of birth and Gàidhlig speaking:

A significant part of the locally born population still spoke Gàidhlig. Those born outside of the Gaidhealtachd were almost totally non-Gàidhlig speaking.

Notes:

² Born in other parishes of Scotland with more than 50 % Gàidhlig speakers in the 1891 census.

Speakers according to place of birth (1) nearby¹ (2) in remaining Gaidhealtachd ², or (3) elsewhere

Remarks:

1. Only two women in the district spoke “only Gaelic”: A 68 years old crofter’s widow in Dail a'Mhorair (Delavorar) born in neighbouring Obar Neithich (Abernethy) and a mason’s wife (56 years of age) in Lagan a'Mhuilinn (Lagganvullin). The latter was born on the west coast in the parish of Arasaig (Arisaig) and had been wrongly counted in the census calculations as speaking Gàidhlig as well as English.
2. In original census report terms the district had a population of 261 persons of all ages. 52 enumerated inhabitants spoke “Gaelic and English” and one return was counted as monolingual Gàidhlig speaker. This led to an “official” share of Gàidhlig speakers of 20.3 %. This was a small under-estimate of 1.8 %!
