Alba (Scotland): Past and present

State of Gàidhlig in 1891:

The community was overwhelmingly Gàidhlig speaking at this time and as such the villages were among the most important strongholds of the language on the island. Only some younger people (mostly from the Lowlands) did not speak the traditional language of the island. Two young girls were still reported as not speaking English.

The strongest language communities were to be found in Catagal (Catacol) and An t-Achadh Mòr (Achimore) with more than 90% of the usually resident population speaking Gàidhlig.

Area description:

The area in question lies on the western coastal strip of the island of Arainn (Arran). As such it was part of the small county of Siorrachd Bhòid (Buteshire) in 1891. The small communities involved were situated between An t-Achadh Mòr (Achimore) and Peighinn Riabhach (Penrioch)

Many residents were basically concerned with fishing or shipping in general – apart from subsistence agriculture within the crofting system.

Age profile: Share of population speaking (1) Gàidhlig, (2) Gàidhlig & English, or (3) no Gàidhlig at all

Background of Gàidhlig (Scottish Gaelic) Local Profiles:

The 1891 census was the first such enumeration exercise with an unequivocal language question. After more than 100 years the original census forms are publicly available for detailed analysis. During research concerned with the “Gàidhlig (Scottish Gaelic) Local Studies” a vast number of such local statistics have been gathered about the Gàidhlig speaking population of Scotland in that year. As many of these results could not be included in the reports these concise fact-sheets are a welcome way to publish some of the “local gems”. ## Place of birth and Gàidhlig speaking:

Over four fifths of the locally born population spoke Gàidhlig. On the other hand just a quarter of all “lowland born” residents spoke the language, too.

Notes:

<sup>1</sup> Born either in the parish of Kilmory (Buteshire) or in the parish of Kilbride (Buteshire). This means they had a birthplace on the island of Arainn (Arran).

<sup>2</sup> Born in other parishes of Scotland with more than 50 % Gàidhlig speakers in the 1891 census.

Speakers according to place of birth (1) nearby<sup>1</sup> (2) in remaining Gaidhealtachd<sup>2</sup>, or (3) elsewhere

Remarks:

1. In original census report terms the district had a population of 229 persons of all ages. In total 181 enumerated inhabitants spoke “Gaelic and English” and two persons “Gaelic only”. This led to an “official” share of Gàidhlig speakers of 80.0 %. This figure was a moderate under-estimate of 6.1 % of the figures of the usually resident population.
2. There was one “Gaelic only” return in the usually resident population above the age of two: a three year old girl living in Peighinn Riabhach (Penrioch). She was born locally. A one year old girl at An t-Achadh Mòr (Achimore) was additionally counted as monolingual Gàidhlig speaker.
3. In total 28 usually resident persons were enumerated as speaking no Gàidhlig. This group was made up of 18 “incomers” with birthplaces in the Lowlands (Ayrshire, Glasgow a. o.) or even further away. The remaining “local” English monoglots belonged mainly to the younger generation.
