Alba (Scotland): Past and present

State of Gàidhlig in 1891:

The language was universally spoken by the locally born population. Interestingly there was a deep linguistic division in the community with a large majority of local Gàidhlig speakers and a small group of Ayrshire farmers who spoke nothing but English.

On the other hand a significant proportion of Gàidhlig speakers remained monolingual especially at young age and among the elderly. Strongest Gàidhlig communities were found on the north-eastern tip of the island around Sòrasdal (Sorisdale) and Còrnaig Mhòr (Cornaigmore) but also at Baile Hogh (Ballyhaugh).

Area description:

The district covers roughly the north-eastern half of the island of Colla (Coll) which was part of the county of Earra-Ghaidheal (Argyll) at that time.

The islanders were occupied with two significantly different agricultural practices. The locally born people were mainly crofters living on land with poorer soils whereas the more fertile countryside was farmed by a few Ayrshire farmers who had been “imported” by the island owner.

Background of Gàidhlig (Scottish Gaelic) Local Profiles:

The 1891 census was the first such enumeration exercise with an unequivocal language question. After more than 100 years the original census forms are publicly available for detailed analysis. During research concerned with the “Gàidhlig (Scottish Gaelic) Local Studies” a vast number of such local statistics have been gathered about the Gàidhlig speaking population of Scotland in that year. As many of these results could not be included in the reports these concise fact-sheets are a welcome way to publish some of the “local gems”. Place of birth and Gàidhlig speaking:

Almost all persons with “no Gaelic” were born outside the Gaidhealtachd. Gàidhlig monolinguals made up more than a third of the remaining population irrespective of place of birth.

Notes:

¹ Born either on the Isle of Coll or in the parish of Tìree (both Argyll).

² Born in other parishes of Scotland with more than 50 % Gàidhlig speakers in the 1891 census.

Speakers according to place of birth (1) nearby¹ (2) in remaining Gaidhealtachd ², or (3) elsewhere

Remarks:

1. In total 23 persons in the usually resident population did not speak Gàidhlig. They all had Lowland connections and were registered in six families. These were headed by the parish minister, two farmers, a shepherd, a dairy manager and a dairy keeper. Apart from the local priest all household heads originated from Ayrshire.
2. In original census report terms the district had a population of 269 persons of all ages. 117 enumerated inhabitants spoke “Gaelic and English” and 79 were counted as monolingual Gàidhlig speakers. This led to an “official” share of Gàidhlig speakers of 72.9 %. This figure was a very significant under-estimate of 16.4 % compared with the more realistic figures taking into account only the usually resident population. Main reason of this discrepancy was the visit of a few fishing vessels from North-East Scotland to the hamlet of Còrnaig Bheag (Cornaigbeag). All visitors did not speak Gàidhlig.
